Revision of the Geographical Indication Policy: oriGIn EU welcomes the position adopted by the Plenary of the European Parliament

The Plenary of the European Parliament adopted today the report of Mr Paolo De Castro, rapporteur on the revision of the Geographical Indication (GI) policy. oriGIn EU would like to congratulate all the rapporteurs and Members of the Parliament who took into account the needs of the sector. Since the publication of the legislative proposal by the European Commission on 31 March 2022, oriGIn EU members have been calling on EU decision-makers to improve the text with a view to ensure the continued success of the EU GI policy.

oriGIn EU welcomes the position of the European Parliament which rejects any delegation of competencies to the European Union Intellectual Property Office (EUIPO) regarding the analysis of GI product specifications. MEPs want DG Agriculture of the European Commission to stay at the heart of the management of the GI system, a key demand of GI producers. We remain convinced that the EUIPO can contribute to the IP component of the system, facilitating the protection and enforcement of GIs, including online, as well as strengthening the EU GI system on international export markets.

Moreover, the European Parliament calls for a more robust protection of GIs. oriGIn EU is particularly pleased with the proposal to strengthen the protection of GIs online, in the domain names environment and when GIs are used as ingredients. Likewise, the deletion of the proposed definition of evocation is welcome as well as the reinforcement of controls on GIs. We hope that the European Member States will align with the ambition of the European Parliament in term of protection during the trilogue.

Finally, the Parliament clarifies and strengthens the role of producer groups, while strategically preserving national specificities in the application of the subsidiarity principle. oriGIn EU hopes that this new framework will favour the development and strengthening of GI producer groups in all Member States.

“oriGIn EU congratulates the rapporteurs on the great work done on this key dossier for the future of GIs. The approach adopted by the comAGRI and now the whole European Parliament is very positive. It sets out an ambitious European Geographical Indication system to ensure that producers can continue contributing to the sustainable development of rural areas across the EU. We call on the European Member States and the European Commission in the context of the trilogue, not to overturn the ambitious approach of the European Parliament, with a view to secure a rapid conclusion of this reform,” said the President of oriGIn EU, Charles Deparis.

oriGIn EU is the European branch of the Geographical Indications (GIs) global alliance (<https://www.origin-gi.com>) and represents GIs individual groups as well as GIs national associations before the European institutions. The GIs sector makes a tremendous contribution to the European economy, representing a sales value of more than €75 billion a year and some 15.5% of total EU food and drink exports.
